(Dateline: 04/12/02 Las Vegas, NV) I'm not going to hold you in suspense. I'm going to give you the name of the antichrist immediately. My only request is that you read the entire article and take what I've written into consideration. If you do, you will undoubtedly come to the same conclusion I have. The name of the antichrist is... Politically Correct.

This catchy little phrase surfaced about the time the planet Pluto firmly entered the zodiacal sign of Sagittarius in July 1996. Sagittarius is the sign of The Truth Seeker. Pluto is the planet that creates mass destruction and transformation. Let's review what human beings have had to endure under the influence of this energy.

In the name of, "Politically Correct," people are intimidating, corrupting, and manipulating those who lack the common sense and courage to stand up for truth and justice!

The Politically Correct Movement is totally expedient - meaning based on or offering what is of use or advantage rather than what is right or just; guided by self-interests; politic - n. (expedient - as defined by Webster's New World Dictionary).

Based on my personal experience, speculation regarding the name of the antichrist has existed for at least forty years. How about you? How many proposed names have you heard? Too many to even remember one? Me, too!

No one's predictions regarding the name of the antichrist have ever proven correct... and I can tell you with the utmost of confidence, The Antichrist is not a person... it is a movement. A movement so vile, so evil, so destructive... that it is exposing all of the stupidity and fear that human beings are capable of espousing and expressing. That's as Plutonian as it can get!

The Antichrist According to Webster is:

1. an opponent of or disbeliever in Christ.
2. [A-] Bible the great antagonist of Christ, expected to spread universal evil before the end of the world but finally to be conquered at Christ's second coming; I John 2:18.
3. a false Christ.

Webster's Dictionary definition refers us to I John 2:18. That reference refers to The First Epistle of John, written by the apostle John sometime in the 80s or 90s of the first century. Bible scholars believe John, the son of Zebedee, wrote this letter prior to being banished to the island of Patmos by the Roman Emperor Domitian. The following is the quote from The New King James Version to which Webster's Dictionary refers:

I John 2:18 "Little children, it is the last hour; and as you have heard that the Antichrist is coming, even now many antichrists have come, by which we know that it is the last hour."

The operative phrase from this quote is, "even now many Antichrists have come." This explicitly tells us there are many antichrists. More than one means a group. A group of people who have an agenda is - a movement.

"Even now many antichrists have come,"

There are many reasons why I believe the name of the antichrist is... Politically Correct. At this point, I'll list a few of these reasons for your consideration.

Nationwide, in the name of, Politically Correct, our children cannot talk to God in their classrooms, or in their schools, least those who do not believe in God be offended. Christmas 2001 in Las Vegas, Nevada was so Politically Correct, the Christian Nativity Scene was not allowed to be displayed in public places. This makes me wonder... why would anyone feel threatened by the word, "God," and what God represents?

Politically Correct means catering to captured terrorists with special meals, warm showers, and specialized medical treatment while the U.S. military, who guard and protect us from the terrorists, must eat military rations for their meals and take cold showers. This makes me wonder why those who risk their lives defending our country and its principles are not treated with more reverence and respect.

Politically Correct means turning a blind eye towards those who insist that our children have the "right" to walk into a public library and access pornographic websites via library computers. This makes me wonder why some people want to destroy the innocence of childhood... a wonder-filled period of time that, considering the daily events occurring in our world, ends much too soon.

It is Politically Correct to rewrite the pages of the history books of this great nation so as not to offend ethnic groups, or the people of nations with whom we have fought two World Wars, but now engage in trade and commerce. This makes me wonder why the lives of our military, all of whom died defending the principles of our nation, are not honored more appropriately.

Politically Correct means turning a deaf ear when one hears, "Press one for English. Para Espanol, numero dos," when one telephones any major business in the U.S. in order to conduct a transaction. This makes wonder (why are there classes called English as a second language?) when did the language of our great nation become second to what we used to consider a foreign language?

Politically Correct means going against the Laws of God and Mother Nature by sanctioning and allowing couples of the same sex to marry one another. This makes me wonder, just for the sake of sexual preference, how do these people rationalize their alternative lifestyle?

Politically Correct means that it is perfectly acceptable for a deaf lesbian couple to boast about and celebrate their success at the deliberately planned birth of their deaf child. They expect us to applaud their efforts towards searching for and finding the sperm of a donor with the highest probability of producing a deaf child. They both thought bringing a hearing child into the world was a form of surrendering to a dominant "aural" culture, like asking a Native American to be white. This makes me wonder, how does one human being justify deciding whether or not another human being should have the capability of being able to hear the birds sing or the words... God Bless You?

Politically Correct means the average American must work six months out of every twelve months to earn enough money to pay his or her taxes in order to fund the U.S. government, local government, and hundreds of programs for, "those less fortunate than the average American worker"... This makes me wonder if most of the less fortunate really are less fortunate, or are they are just plain lazy?

Politically Correct means allowing our politicians to give billions of dollars, the money taxpayers supply, to countries all over the world, under the label of foreign aid. What good has ever come from this policy? Give me just one example. All I ever hear from mainstream media is how these countries take our money and call us stupid Americans. This makes me wonder, who benefits from this expensive gesture me, the politician, the country... who? I've learned, "If you give a man a fish, you feed him for a day... if you teach him how to fish, you feed him for a lifetime."

Well, I could continue, but given all that I've written thus far, I'm sure you can understand why I've come to the conclusion that the name of the antichrist is... Politically Correct. Is there an end to this madness, if so, when?

Astrologically, tropically, Pluto leaves the sign of Sagittarius about November 2008. While transiting Sagittarius, Pluto is demanding that all of us dig deeply and seek the truth regarding the values, benefits and principles of higher philosophies, religion, higher education (colleges and universities), the law, the medical field, and foreign cultures.

Furthermore, we will continue to be inundated with events, dire circumstances, and tragedies until we find the courage to make the necessary changes needed in order to live our lives truthfully and facing reality.

At this point, I am reminded of the story read to me as a child... The Emperor's New Clothes. It's the story about a vain emperor who is swindled by a tailor who promises to make him some new clothes more beautiful than any the emperor already owns. Weeks later, after being paid a great deal of money, the tailor delivers the "clothes". When the emperor complains about not being able to "see" the outfit, the tailor tells him the clothes are made of a " fine, rare invisible fabric". Refusing to face the truth, the vain emperor parades down the main street of his kingdom believing he is dressed in his grand new clothes, but in truth, he is as naked as the day he was born. His "loyal subjects," fearing his wrath, keep silent, and only a little child is truthful enough to state, "Look, mommy, the emperor isn't wearing any clothes!" Which of these characters do you identify with, the emperor, his subjects, or the little child? Your answer will determine just how Politically Correct you are!

Who among you reading this column hasn't wondered if what we are experiencing at this moment in time (4/12/02) isn't a precursor to the last hours you'll spend on this planet? How do we overcome the madness of the Politically Correct Movement? Perhaps the answer lies within the following quote I read in my bible.

"John reminds us that love is not just by word, but by deed and truth. The life of a believer is more than just saying, 'I love you.' It is living it out!"

Furthermore, "John assures his readers from a first-hand experience that Jesus is fully God and fully man, whose unique purpose is to restore fellowship between men and women and their Creator Father."

And finally, "John encourages his readers to be practical and action-oriented in living out their faith. In demonstrating love, he makes it clear that..."

Love is not love... until you give it away!"
